Local Soldiers In Heroes' Graves on French Battlefield

Particulars have just come to hand regarding the death and burial of two of Wainwright's soldiers who fell fighting for their country—Pte John Robert Lowe and Adam Valtch.

Regarding Robert Lowe's death which was reported some time ago, later rumors had that he was still alive and well. Much as we would like to believe these hearsays, the sad fact speaks against them. The following letter was received by Pte Lowe's mother in Red Deer from the chaplain who buried him—

"It is with the deepest sympathy that I write to tell you that Pte J. R. Lowe of the 40th Canadian Infantry has died in this Clearing Station. He was brought down here wounded on Sept. 30th but his wound was of such a nature that in spite of every attention he passed away the following day. I have buried him this morning in our Cemetery. His grave will be marked with a wooden cross bearing his name and after the war is over you will be able to find out where he lies."

Wainwright's Blameless IS JURYS VERDICT ON IRMA DEATH

A. A. in his parents for burial. Her name, who was 20 years of age was brought down from the north coast where he had been lost on a hunting trip and had frozen to death.

The jury brought in their verdict that Herman had come to his death by being lost, starved, and frozen to death. They said that no blame was attached to any of the parties concerned.

Deceased, with William H. Walker and his son, Alfred Walker, left home at Irma at the end of November to go north on a hunting trip, and there was an agreement that Herman was to provide all grub and expenses. The Walkers to provide man, wagon and cooking utensils.

The party reached Irma's camp at Fox Lake on December 8. They were joined there by two other men named Decker and Barker. When they reached their camp on the 12th, Herman started off alone in a North West direction to follow the tracks of moose which they had seen, as he was very anxious to get one. The rest of the party went out to find food for the horses. Mr. Young Walker being left alone in the camp. All the party arrived back that night with the exception of Herman. A light was kept in the tent, a large fire built and a fire fired frequently. The next day through search was made of the district without results.

Another hunting party came up on the 14th, consisting of J. Forsythe, Frank Vallette and William Biddisale. They had seen the signs that Walker had put out. After long, vainly search for Frank's camp, Fox Lake.

Two hours after the party had left one of them returned with the information that Herman's body had been found a mile and a half up the trail. The body was then brought back.

The R.N.W.M.P. reports that in regard to the statement that Herman had left on his horse when he went out on the trip. There is nothing to show that he had so much, but he had purchased a considerable amount of food and ammunition and had spent money freely along the trail to the moose and deer and horses.

The weather at the time Herman was lost ranged from 30 to 40 below, and he was apparently weakened in a circle as he left the camp in a N.W. direction and was found south.

There was no mark of violence on the body, and no effects save two moose antlers.

His gloves were worn at the time of his death and the hands of his pants were so frozen that he had been crawling around for some time. He was found on the fifth day away from camp and had not food with him.

There is positively no blame attached to any member of the hunting party, any member of the contrary. His friends along with him did everything in their power to aid him when he was discovered missing.

REMARKABLE RECORD IN SERVICE OF EMPIRE OLD LADY 87 WORKS

Mrs F. Dahlgren of this town whose husband is in the service of the Empire received a letter from a cousin in Manitoba, which relates and discloses a very extraordinary account of military strength for king and country. This lady has 12 first cousins, one brother, one brother-in-law, and one son enlisted in this great war, besides a great many second cousins—most remarkable demonstration of loyalty. Mrs. Dahlgren's husband, is one of this number he is serving overseas with the 10th Battalion which recruited in Winnipeg.

Since the war began she has knitted no less than 140 pairs of socks for the soldiers at the front, and that too while crippled with rheumatism. Such a record as this surely puts some of the younger ones to shame and causes them to give up some of the less important duties for work of this kind which is most important.

SILVER CROSSES FOR BEREAVED MOTHERS CANADA PAYS TRIBUTE

The Canadian Majors who have given a life to the cause of right on the battlefields of France—a life more precious than her own—the life of her son, over whose grave she cannot place a cross, will wear a little silver cross over her heart that we may know she cherishes a memory that is priceless, of one who faltered not at the call of duty but willingly and gladly laid down his life for his country, says Every Woman's World, in a touching little comment in its December issue. It continues—

"Sir Robert Borden has approved the suggestion of Mr. W. A. Fraser that a silver cross be placed on the grave of every Canadian soldier who died in the war. Some where in France—and it is expected that these crosses will shortly be struck off and distributed.

"Canada will thus pay a simple tribute to a courageous motherhood that has laid its sacrifices on the altar of freedom, bearing its loss with splendid fortitude and unfailing courage.

Helpful Address By Mrs. Bowerman at Institute Meeting

The Women's Institute which holds regular monthly meetings on the second Saturday of each month, has drawn up a program for the year 1917 which should prove most beneficial to the broadening of the women's outlook in our farming community. The first paper of the series was given by Mrs. S. R. Bowerman the first vice-president of the Institute. Mrs. Bowerman when she undertakes any task carries it through in her own inimitable style and on this occasion her paper was most unique and proved a source of helpfulness to all the ladies present. In the usual quiet, kindly and unassuming manner with which she works in the Red Cross Society and other similar institutions, never expecting gain or honor to herself, Mrs. Bowerman contributed at the last meeting of the Women's Institute a paper on the subject "The Cost of Living and Backed to Dollars and Cents." This to her subject she led the women present to see that to be alive these days, had greater price and cost than can be measured in money values. In part Mrs. Bowerman's address was as follows—

Never was the cost of living so great as it is today, the price being paid by the lives of our men in this great war. This is the greatest sacrifice that man can pay. Not only men but women are giving their lives for their country. Our women are carrying the cost of living by remaining at home and plowing their loved ones to march forward in this great fight for right against wrong, but kindly remember they too are fighting a battle and enduring many hardships, and as patiently and truly as the father or son at the front, and she will be more pure and nobler for making such sacrifices. Applying this subject to the women assembled here today, mothers, daughters, sisters, we find that we pay the cost of our living individually. Each woman here is queen of her dominion—Home. Sometimes a great price is paid for home by the woman who reigns there. When home was begun, love was supreme, but as it developed the wife had to sacrifice many of her ambitions, or it would mean the ruin of home, yet through this sacrifice or cost the home, wife and husband are made nobler and purer. Then too, who pays the price of childhood as the mother, yet who of you can fathom a mother's love, sometimes the cost means a life, however many are spared for the blessings of her child. The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world, but there is a price paid, and who does realize this better than mother. The anxious days of training teaching and guiding her child means a blessing or a curse. Every evil thought, word or deed in the child brings a price to pay, and the child will attain no higher standard of thought word or deed than has the home, and mother, and we all know of heart-broken mothers, ruined homes—the price paid for untrained children.

Now we will bring the child, or woman to her home, and establish her own home, and this simply means, a reflection of the home she has just left, and now we are brought face to face with this old world problem, the cost of living. Today women are realizing more than ever before that she really does exist, and that she does have personality and must have freedom of thought and

OPENING OF NEW CHURCH AT HEATH

The new church that has lately been erected at Heath is formally opened for divine service on last Sunday by the Rev. H. Wilson, Vicar of St. Thomas Wainwright.

A very good congregation was present, many of whom received the Thanksgiving Holy Communion.

The church is situated on the shores of St. Patrick's Lake, south of Heath railway station and will be known as St. Patrick's church. The land upon which it is built was given by Mr. McLeod of Heath, whose generosity is much appreciated. The Grand Trunk Pacific very generously gave the right-of-way to the building. The Ladies of the W.A. are providing the pews, which are forthcoming very shortly, and they have already provided for the heating. Mr. Hunt donated two very pretty brass vases for the Communion Table in addition to a large hymnal for the organ.

The congregation is fortunate in having two such excellent church wardens as Messrs Withersell and Fred Ford, who are largely responsible for the speedy erection of the building.

The next step will be an application to the Bishop for a license for Divine service and the due administration of the Sacraments, which will be followed at a later date by the act of consecration.

The services will be provided by the present Vicar of St. Thomas and it is confidently expected that St. Patrick's church will not only prove a valuable asset to the thriving hamlet of Heath, but also a great blessing and a source of strength to many living in this district.

St. Patrick's church, Heath—Sunday school 2:30. Evensong 8 p.m.

The Alberta musical festival will be held this year in the City of Edmonton in May. This is a prize winning festival competition for choral societies, choirs of different sizes and individuals. Intending competitors should communicate with Cyril G. Watson Secy—Treas 209 Syndicate Bldg Edmonton.

WAR PROFITS

TODAY EVERYONE is called to national service, young or old, rich or poor. This includes surely war profits. If he cannot fight or work, cheerfully the man who is making profits of the war, should pay for his substitute. Or if he won't do that he should be compelled to turn all war profits back into the treasury of the nation as a means of war. At this great hour of national crisis, how can anyone with a clear conscience use such profits of his business for selfish ends, when men are fighting, suffering, dying, to give us peaceful homes and a free country.

GRIM DETERMINATION

NOT A DOUBT about it, there is gloom and depression in the air. The war is lengthening out beyond the fondest expectations of many. They are getting tired under the stress and strain. We are not in as good heart as we were during the summer. At the same time there is general conviction of the final victory of the Allies, though we do question the duration and cost of the struggle. It is well, therefore, to put to ourselves this searching question—what have we the right to expect? There is a tendency, is there not, to think that the goodness of our cause shall save us from having to pay the price of past mistakes? Let us rather face the wholesome truth that, as a nation, have made the way to victory longer and harder though, past folly and past mistakes. The old proverb "The fathers have eaten sour grapes and the children's teeth are set on edge" still holds good. It is however, our duty today, instead of giving away to depression and gloom, to be thankful for the measures of victory already granted to the Allies. It is our duty, in such times of despondency to bethink ourselves of the miracle of Mons and Ypres, and the victory of the Marne. It is further our duty, to set our teeth in grim determination to carry on, be the skies dark or bright, be the way tenfold beyond our expectations.

TWO WAYS: CAPITAL MAY SERVE

WE ARE TOLD that there are two ways of serving our country in this great war. The first way is to leave home and kindred and to face unexampled privations and death as scores of thousands of the best men of Canada have done and are doing, and lay down life itself in blood soaked Flanders. The second way is to remain at home amid luxury and prosperity, and invest one's savings in the Dominion of Canada war bonds at the lowest bond prices known to the present generation. To a great many people, especially the men of wealth, this second way is the most congenial way. While it must not be considered the most sacrificial way, or the way that will gain the greatest honor, yet it is very essential to the winning of the war. The Dominion must have money at its disposal if the war is to be won. The purchase of the war bonds does not necessarily involve any sacrifice on the investor's part. The investment is very often made because it appeals solely to the business instinct of the men of wealth. On many hands among financial men there is heard the opinion that the prospectus of the next Dominion war loan could with advantage make a more popular appeal, clothed in language easily intelligible to the layman, to the business instinct of Canadians. The general opinion is that this could be accomplished without in any wise lessening the force of the patriotic appeal which should speak most loudly to us all.

LAST WEEK an ex-soldier in Edmonton committed suicide by hanging himself. The cause, it was said was despondency at not being able to find work. One newspaper commenting on it, expressed the indignant hope that that would be the means of arousing the government to its responsibility in caring for the men who have done, or were willing to do sacrificial service for the empire.

The government has its hands pretty full just now, but it is not neglecting the all important work of caring for returned or ex-soldiers. At the ports of entry each returning soldier is interviewed and examined by military commission and his needs discovered. If he needs medical attention he receives it. If he needs retraining to fit him for participating in any branch of industry he receives it and in scores of ways he is helped to regain and retain his place in economic life, and as far as possible employment is secured for him. The report of the Alberta branch of the Returned Soldier Commission, whose headquarters is in the Government Buildings, shows that up to December 12 employment was found for 531 men. It shows further that there were 14 men who refused work, and also that there were 73 positions waiting to be filled by suitable men as soon as they were forthcoming. It is therefore altogether likely that this soldier in question was not neglected by the government and failure to find employment was in all probability not the cause of his suicide.

The government is caring to the best of its ability for the returned and disabled soldiers. Each Provincial Government has appointed a Commission to help discharged men in securing steady and remunerative work. The Dominion (Gov. ernment), and authorities and employers, systematically give preference to returned soldiers when filling vacant positions. Occupation is often as necessary and beneficial as rest itself in its curative and strengthening effect on body and mind. Classes are therefore held at the hospitals, for instruction and practice in many arts and industries, such as carpentering and wood-carving, metal and leather working, typewriting and book keeping, mechanical drawing and elementary engineering, gardening, book-keeping and poultry-keeping.

These all help to increase the capacity of the patients, and to lessen the effects of any injury they have received, by getting them into practice for such industries as they can profitably undertake. The medical and vocational officers try first to discover what each man is most likely to succeed at, and then to fit him for it as thoroughly as possible.

It has been wisely decided that no man shall forfeit any part of his pension on account of his industry and enterprise in improving his own financial position.

In a great many cases of returned soldiers they will, through the system of retraining and re-education provided by the government, find themselves in a much better position than before to gain employment, and even more remunerative work.

MR. H. B. SHAW GENERAL MANAGER OF UNION BANK

At the annual meeting of shareholders of the Union Bank of Canada lately the important announcement was made that Mr. G. H. Balford had retired from the office of general manager and that Mr. H. B. Shaw had been appointed in his place.

The bank has an important branch in London, England, and has also recently established itself in the city of New York. This latter move is no doubt brought about by the recent movement of banking and exchange business to the City of New York, which resulted from the economic disturbance following the war.

The new general manager, Mr. H. B. Shaw is well known. He has, ever since of business age, been closely associated with the bank. Mr. Shaw has had very wide eastern experience, but the new appointment is particularly interesting to the west because Mr. Shaw is a western banker. His long experience of the country's banking needs as gained from positions extending from those of branch manager in a farming community to western superintendent and assistant general manager have fitted him particularly for the management of a bank so closely identified with west.

There is a feeling that the general desire for the more banking facilities in aid of production can be met by a progressive policy on the part of the recognized banking institutions, said a Union bank official in discussing the change. It is quite possible that this advantage may be provided by them quite as effectively and certainly as inexpensively as by the proposed voluntary method.

The school of thought coming out of it will be more likely to recognize and adapt themselves to these needs. A Canadian banker must be progressive and at the same time conservative. The responsibilities of his position are very onerous. Our banks all the office of trustees and stewards of other people's wealth, which they must always be ready to return but also always make productive. The foreign operations of our banks are as the present crisis of great significance. Adequate banking facilities with representation in allied and neutral countries are going to be fundamental necessary to the development of Canada's trade abroad. Our banks can be no longer mere local institutions whose operations are to be limited by territorial boundary lines. The movement of the Union Bank into New York indicates the recognition by the directorate of this fundamental fact.

That the Union Bank should receive its introduction into New York under the auspices of an advisory committee composed of Messrs. Shryvesant Fish, Cornelius Vanderbuilt and Gilbert G. Thorne, should be highly gratifying. Enjoying complete confidence heretofore the Union Bank will, it is safe to predict, go forward in this new and broadened policy to fill a still wider field of commercial usefulness.

At Brandon last night the thermometer took a big drop, the lowest point this winter being reached. The experimental farm reported 52 below zero this morning.

"JUST FOR FUN"

Last Saturday night a team left standing in the cold outside the Wainwright Hotel was startled by the town policeman. The gentleman who owned the team was having his supper at the restaurant. There was no fun of course for either him or the policeman, but some of the "Jockers" around town are saying that because the team was left standing outside the Hotel, it was a well known citizen who thinking the owner was inside impounded the horses. This gentleman disclaims having anything to do with it not having been down town that night at all. He, however, does not mind the story being circulated about him if it gives pleasure to its peddlers.

EDGERTON NEWSLET

The fine roads of the last few days are bringing many distant settlers into our town.

Mr. Dansey shipped a carload of hogs to the capital this week.

Edgerton community is becoming famous for stock as well as wheat. May the good work progress as there is good money in stock as well as in wheat.

Mr. Hallett is on the sick list this week. May we see him around again in a few days in the wish of all.

Mr. Boucher the school master spent the week-end in town and attended the dance.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Anderson living ten miles north of town have lost their new house. Mrs. Anderson was heating some lard which caught fire and the flames spread at such a rate that the house was soon a seething mass and burned to the ground. They managed to save most of their furniture.

This town is well favored with a splendid line of dances. The management of both places are trying to give their patrons a good time.

The literary debate on "Married Life or Single Blessedness" was a huge success. The married folks are so happy that it is hard for them to talk about it. Rev. Bacon gave the society a very powerful and impressive lecture on the "Seriousness of Married Life" which was enjoyed by all.

Miss Hass spent Sunday at her home in Chauvin.

Mr. Keith, D.D.G.M. and suite of Chauvin were in town Thursday evening for the I.O.O.F. installation. After the regular business and installation, several fine speeches were in order. May these choice words inspire and infuse new life into every member of this lodge. Refreshments were served, after which the ladies of the society were entertained by playing and social conversation.

Dr. and Mrs. Berenson left Sunday for Wausau, Wisconsin, where Mrs. Berenson enters a sanatorium to regain her health. The entire community join in wishing her speedy recovery and that she will be back again among us enjoying better health.

Mr. Saddler spent the week-end in Chauvin.

A rink of curlers went down to Chauvin Saturday and put up a good game without practice. Wait till they get some practice and they will be a splendid rink.

Mr. Ira Kimball and family left this week for Nebraska where they will spend the winter. We hope to see them back among us in the spring.

Mr. Wm. Russell has gone east to his old home in Ontario. He expects to bring back a car of pure bred stock for his farm.

Speak well of the town you live in and spend your money at home.

GILT EDGE

The Bachelors dance on Friday last was a grand success, a large number enjoyed the evening and dancing was continued until 7 a.m.
